> A Question in Which Every Human Being Is Interested.

Send Your Views to "The Evening World" and You May Win a Double Eagle.

Every reader of THE EVENTSO WORLD is invited to compete in this contest. The question is:

Should husband and wife be near the same age, or should the wife be much younger?

Contributions in this contest are subject o similar comittions of those in former competitions: The letters must not be over 200 words in length; they must be written on only one side of the paper and oust be addressed to "The Marriage Age Editor, Eventso Women, 31 and 32 Park Row, New York,"

Selected communications from those received will be printed in daily instalments. The best one of all, picked out by competent indges, will win for its writer a prize of a golden double eagle. No letters will be returned unless a request to that effect is made and postage stamps inclused.

"Not Jackson. Well, of ail"—, but the young woman never ended the sentence, for she turned to look at the person she had been conversing with and, to her dismay, discovered a total stranger at her side. In the dim light of the arc lamps of the park she had addressed her. self to a man that stood by. Her "bean" was some feet away, gazing intently at the white walers of the fountain. With a bound she gresped his arm and, dragging him away, the couple were lost in the darkness.

THE WRONG MAN AGAIN.

Amusing Situation Growing Out of a Strong Resemblance. There are two men in this city, says the Kansas City Star, who resemble each other very much. One is a druggist, while the other is a cigar dealer. As the cigar dealer was walking up Main street the other day an unknown gentleman met him and shook hands with him, greeting him as an old friend. The stored to sound and perfect health and strength by cigar dealer disabused the stranger's mind, whereupon the stranger stammered an apology for his mistake. Nothing further was thought of the matter until a week afterwards, when the cigar dealer beheld his quondam acquaint-atice again bearing down on him all smiles. Thinking the former momentary acquaintance warranted it he, too, smiled. "Well, sir." said the stranger, as he came up, "the funnest thing happened the other day. I stopped a fellow on the street and commenced taking to him, thinking it was you all the time."

Here he removed his laugh at the thoughts of the occurrence, but it was speedly displaced by a troubled look when he learned that he had better class around awhile longer till he found his iriend the drug man for he was again mistaken in the party. ace again bearing down on him all smiles.
